A lot of ministry professionals struggle with discouragement: "Why isn't this working? Am I even making a difference?" Maybe you've asked these questions, too. You've tried praying more and working harder, but nothing changes and you're left feeling disillusioned, isolated, and exhausted.

But what if you could address the root cause of discouragement and were free to minister from a place of joy, hope, and peace? In this workshop, learn how to align your mind with Christ and discern what's within your control so that you can lead with confidence and surrender the rest to God.

Make this your best year yet: begin by rekindling hope in your own heart this Advent.
